U.J.A. Women Do Their Part

Jerusalem Post Reporter
Women control the purse strings in the American home. This was stated yesterday by Mrs. Jack A. Goodman, National Chairman of the National Women's Division of the U.J.A. and Mrs. John C. Hopp, National Vice-Chairman, at a press conference in Jerusalem explaining the role of women in raising funds for the U.J.A. The two women are part of a 32-woman delegation here on a 10-day study tour.

The speakers said that women, asked to contribute out of their household budgets, raise 10-15 per cent of the sum given by their husbands. In the past 11 years, since the Women's Division was founded, the women have raised $150,000.

However, their influence does not stop here. By creating an atmosphere of "giving" in the home, the women encourage their husbands to increase substantially their contributions.

The Division conducts an all-the-year round educational programme among its members, stressing the needs of Israel. There are "young matrons" and "junior" groups, both tapped frequently for potential leadership. In Nashville, Tenn., for example, there is a mother and daughter team working actively for the U.J.A.

It was noted that $620,000 was raised by the women in their last drive in Detroit. Of this sum, 400 women gave $400,000, and 11,000 women contributed the remaining $220,000.

The Division is working to increase the sum given by small contributors. "Two cents a day" drives have been organized, which bring in $36.50 a year. A "dollar a week" campaign is now aimed at replacing the first drive.

With the exception of a few well-known workers, the bulk of the work is done by volunteers.

Open Sewage Canal Breeds Mosquitoes

Jerusalem Post Reporter
The open sewage canal running through the Valley of the Cross has served as a breeding place for the mosquitoes which have been plaguing residents of Rehavia in Jerusalem this summer. The Municipal spokesman said yesterday, "We stated that steps were being taken to stop this nuisance."

The sewer, which starts in Rehavia and is tapped regularly by Yitzhar Vepitukh with Municipal permission to irrigate its crops raised further down the Valley. Steps are also being taken to stop supplying this farm with the sewage for its fields in the upper part of the Valley.

In addition, several other persons have illegally tapped the sewer. The Municipality has already smashed the pipes they used and destroyed the crops being raised since insufficient sanitary precautions had been taken to guard the health of those eating these vegetables.

He is said to have explained in his letter of resignation that he no longer has the confidence of the public. Mr. Tuviyahu's action arises from the dispute between him and Mr. Gideon Ben-Yisrael, secretary of the Labour Council. A wave of excitement swept the stadium as the after runner, Arle Navet, entered bearing the Maccabiah torch, which had been brought from the graves of the Maccabim in Modi'in by relay of young Maccabim runners, and was greeted by photographers. Navet circled the track, saluted the President and ascended the platform to light the eternal flame.

His white silhouette was outlined in the setting sun as the assembly arose for the reciting of Yisrael. The flags were lowered to half-mast, and trumpets rang out the Last Post as the address which was to have been given by the late President of World Maccabi, Mr. A. Netanel, was read out.

Jail for Life For Killing Daughter

HAIFA, Sunday. — Zakkai Eliyahu, 46, a railway labourer and father of five children, was sentenced today to life imprisonment after being found guilty of the premeditated murder of his eldest daughter, Adina, aged 19, last November.

Eliyahu killed the girl with a kitchen knife he had bought for the purpose, in the presence of his family in their down-town home, in order to save the family's honour.

The court rejected the defence plea that Eliyahu had not known what he was doing because he had been drunk at the time. It found that he had planned the murder and wanted his daughter to die because he considered that she had disgraced the family.

Asked by the President of the District Court, Judge Y. Asulal, if he wished to say anything before sentence was passed, Eliyahu replied: "Put me according to your conscience." He received the verdict calmly.

The background to the murder was a romance between Adina and Eliezer Kaduri whose family had been friendly with the Eliyahus. The couple maintained a secret affair, and Eliezer had promised marriage. Later he demanded a dowry of at least IL2,500. The couple then broke off their affair. But Adina had become pregnant. Her mother tried to conceal this fact and took her to various women who gave her poisons to cause an abortion.

These gave Adina great pain and slowly poisoned her, finally causing the miscarriage. She hid the still-born infant on the Shemen beach and was treated at the Ramat Gan hospital. Her father learned of her pregnancy only after she returned from hospital.

The news worried him, and he stopped going out so as to avoid meeting his friends because of the blemish on his family's honour. He bought a life, kept it for sometime. One Friday he bought a bottle of Arak, drank it all, and in the evening, killed his daughter.

Rough-House Gang Rounded Up in Eilat

EILAT, Sunday. — A gang of toughs, most of them originating from the Shetah Hagadol in Jaffa and other underworld centres, who had attempted of late to terrorize this town, were arrested tonight in a combined operation of police and local residents.

The action followed an alleged assault on an 18-year-old girl by 12 men on Friday night.

The operation was led by Inspector S. Bogier, of the Kiryat Gat police station and Samal Ben-Yehoshua of the local police force.

Disorderly and wild behaviour by the gang had become a daily occurrence here. The anger of veteran Eilat residents reached breaking point after the assault on the girl, and many citizens presented themselves at the police station demanding concerted action. (Itim)

Three Immigrants Go Over to Syria

SAPAD, Sunday. — Three young men, all of them originating from Morocco, who disappeared from the local warblers a fortnight ago, are now known to be in Damascus. They are Haim Biton, 23, who had left the country for Morocco and returned some time ago; Ya'acov Kadish, 28, and Jacques Saban, 22.

Biton, who had spent some time at the Ayelet Hashahar settlement, was heard over Damascus Radio's Hebrew broadcast last week in a recorded talk, which was relayed several times by the "Zionist State" which tolerated discrimination, and specifically mentioned an Ayelet Hashahar member whom he accused of ill-treating him. He sent regards to his brother in Israel and informed him that he was now "in the free Syrian republic," and would shortly return to his Moslem brethren in Morocco.

Eight soldiers were injured yesterday when the military truck in which they were travelling turned over on the Rosh Pina — Tiberias road near Hukok settlement.

Two-year-old Yisrael Hadar was run over by a mule-drawn wagon in Ramle on Saturday and taken to the Asaf Harofeh hospital in a serious condition.

According to a police report, the child was crossing a road without his parents' supervision and the wagon, driven by Abraham Am, ran him over. The driver was arrested and then released on bond.

Nuclear Scientists On Farewell Tour

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HERZLIYA, Sunday. — Delegates to the Nuclear Structure conference today ended their tour of Israel with a visit to Galilee. Some of the delegates were guests of the Technion.

Yesterday, a number of the visiting scientists toured the Negev. Most of the delegates will be leaving tomorrow.

"Come back," Prof. G. Kacah said at a farewell dinner given by the Weismann Institute for the delegates at the Sharon Hotel. Nobel prize-winner Prof. Pauli, who was Prof. Kacah's teacher, granted "I gladly will, hope somebody will be found here to meet me. According to Prof. Pauli, most Israeli scientists are in Europe most of the time."

"It is because we are encircled, and because the nearest centres of physics are in Europe," Prof. Kacah explained.

Several distinguished delegates took the opportunity to speak about the "very useful conference" they had attended, and the genuine hospitality they had found in this country. The high standard of local work was also commended.

Dr. C. J. Bakker, Director of the CERN, in Geneva, said he would welcome "Prof. De Shalit and his colleagues any time to work together."

Prof. Amos De Shalit said that invitations to the conference were sent on the morning of the Sinai campaign started.

The first acknowledgment and promise to attend came from Dr. M. Deutsch, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the midst of the crisis.

The idea of holding the conference in Israel was first discussed in an Amsterdam café in July of last year during an interval of another atom conference. Prof. A.C.G. Mitchell, of Indiana University, revealed.

Brilliant Visakor Gives Hapoel 2-1 Win

SINGAPORE, Sunday (Reuters). — Petah Tikva Hapoel, the Israeli soccer League champions, will leave on a plane to Singapore today to play in the Singapore Cup.

Twenty-six year old Visakor was the hero of every one of the 6,700 fans at Jambou Stadium today, when single-handed he ruled Singapore in the second half, to enable Hapoel to scrape through to a 2-1 victory.

Singapore did not deserve to lose this match and indeed anyone who came in only for the second half would undoubtedly have said that Singapore were twice as good as their opponents. For 35 of the 45 minutes they dived in and out of the Hapoel defence line — a swarms of bees but Visakor always had the last word.

For the rest, Hapoel played like a tired team. They were slower on the ball, moved it about clumsily and had neither the speed nor the sure-footedness one had expected from a team with their record.

Arms Sale Case Begins Today

TEL AVIV, Sunday. — Courts will resume hearings at eight o'clock tomorrow morning after a six-week recess.

The trial will begin in the District Court of Avraham Grossblatt, of Ramle, accused of buying and selling arms and a pistol which were taken as booty during the 1948 campaign. A Defence Forces Major and an Arab from the Negev, involved in the case, have already been sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment each. Two residents of Rehovot, suspected of being involved in the same case, are soon to be brought before a civil court.

Hadassah Inquiry Into Stray Cheque

Members of the committee are: Mr. A. Profenorsky, advocate, who was elected chairman; Professor L. Halpern, (for the HMO physicians); Mr. Haim Ranan, (for the HMO workers' committee); and Mr. B. Braude (auditor).

A MONTH has now passed since the return to Damascus from the Soviet Union of the Syrian Minister of Defense, General Hafez Assad. The revelation of a "U.S. plot" to overthrow the Syrian Government and the expulsion of three American diplomats from Damascus were parried by means of a puppet administration. Promptly, one of the State Department's most ardent ambassadors, Mr. Loy Henderson, was sent off to the Middle East for a series of conferences with pro-Western Arab leaders.

The dispatch of arms to Jordan coupled with President Eisenhower's warning to Russia not to push Syria into an attack against any of her neighbors was the direct outcome of the Henderson mission. But at this point another element began to creep into the picture. Apparently under Saudi-Arabian pressure, the pro-Western Arabs seemed to become more wary of America's strategy. Statements of solidarity with Syria began leaking through the dyke America had begun to build, mainly in the accepted form of threats against Israel. On August 29, for example, Lebanese Premier Solh declared that "Palestine" was still the number one issue in the Middle East; there would be no peace with Israel. Jordan began fretting over an Israel tree-planting project, and ran off to the Security Council to warn the world of the possibility of a sapling war along the Jerusalem demarcation line.

When unexpectedly a new policy line seemed to emerge from Washington, the Secretary of State declared that Syria's neighbors were able to handle any armed aggression without requiring U.S. military intervention, and surprisingly enough, he added that it was not yet certain that Syria was being dominated by international Communism.

It has already been denied that this switch was due to direct pressure by King Saud, who also chose this time to demonstrate his independence of the West by joining the neutralist bloc and abstaining from the vote of condemnation on the U.S.S.R. over the crushing of last year's revolt in Hungary. No more was admitted in Washington than that King Saud's view had been taken into consideration. Undoubtedly, the renewed hardening of policy among the Arab countries themselves was a factor. These, with the exception, perhaps, of Egypt, are not sufficiently mature politically to realize what has happened in Syria, and that it is more than doubtful whether Syria could escape the Soviet orbit again if she wished, now that Communists and pro-Communists have systematically been infiltrated into the Army, police, security and government at all levels. At the moment they see mainly that General Bizri has a generous supply of arms, and that the Soviet suppliers have not placed any public ban on their use against Israel. It would need a very clear warning now from the United States to make certain that there shall be no mistake, and that Bizri does not succumb to the temptation of using his arms on the Israeli frontier; and that warning would have to be directed as much at the Soviet Union as at Syria herself. Russia may not wish any aggression, but its long-term strategists may not be fully acquainted with the methods of Syrian chiefs of staff.

NATO, Soviets Exercise Navies

Six Operations in Mediterranean This Month

By LEO HEIMAN

SIX naval operations—four of them Western and two Soviet — will soon provide the first glimpse of possible future wars in the Mediterranean. While this nation prays for peace and prosperity in the coming year, on Rosh Hashana 529 ships, 2,000 aircraft, and about 300,000 men of 16 different nations will play the world's most popular game — war — in our immediate area.

All the maneuvers and exercises being launched on September 24 are political and psychological rather than "purely educational" (i.e. training of crews and troops). All plans are influenced and colored by the situation in Syria.

The six operations are code-named Deep-Water, Sea-Spray, Strike-Back and Pipe-Down on the NATO side, and Drubka (Friendship) and Otrvet (Answer) on the Russian side.

● OPERATION DEEP-WATER will be the largest amphibious landing in the world since the invasion of France and Okinawa in World War Two. Over 20,000 Marines and commandos, supported by tanks, rockets, atomic missiles, and swarms of jet aircraft, will go ashore from new-fangled landing craft, amphibious tanks and assault boats, or be hoisted by helicopter at historic Saros Bay and Gallipoli in Turkey. To carry out this mass landing under simulated conditions, an armada of 70 amphibious ships, over 1,000 amphibious landing craft, tanks, tractors and assault boats, and 170 transport planes and helicopters has been assembled and moved into the Eastern Mediterranean area under the immediate command of Rear-Admiral Robert W. Cavagnh, commander of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Forces. Sweating in the crowded holds of amphibious transport ships are 12,000 American Marines divided into one an amphibious Command Team of 9,000 and one independent Battalion Command Team of 3,000; 3,000 British Royal Marine Commandos of the RMC Brigade; and 5,000 French Marines of the 1st Marine Division. They will be supported by a fleet of missile, rocket and field artillery battalions, engineering formations, Turkish raider and commando units, etc.

● OPERATION STRIKE-BACK is under the flag of Admiral Sir John A. S. Eccles, of the Royal Navy, who will head a joint British-Canadian-French naval and air striking force, which will sweep down the Bay of Biscay.

● OPERATION OTRVET is more serious from the operational point of view. The ships and aircraft (all from the Baltic Fleet) include one heavy cruiser, five Tallinn class super-dreadnoughts (called destroyers by the Russians), three supply ships and 20 to 40 submarines operating in the Mediterranean and in the Atlantic approaches to it. The Russians do not advertise their naval exercises as much as the Americans do, but it is impossible to know the tactical aims of each operation in advance, but it seems that Operation Otrvet is concerned with supplying submarines under simulated combat conditions.

The estimated total cost of all six operations tops the billion-dollar mark. The ships and aircraft are being supplied by the Royal Canadian-Canadian-French naval and air striking force, which will sweep down the Bay of Biscay.

Fleets are also participating. Several divisions of the Sixth Fleet, including the heavy aircraft carrier USS Newport, 12 destroyers and two submarines, have been sailing up and down the Syrian coast off Latakia, ostensibly calling upon the joint Turkish-American naval base at neighboring Alexandretta, a guided missile's throw from Latakia.

● OPERATION SEA-SPRAY, commanded by Vice-Admiral Robert B. Pirie, USN, will feature the world's largest aircraft carriers, Forrestal and Saratoga (both American), joining up with six heavy carriers — Essex, Intrepid, Leyte (American) and Ark Royal, Eagle, Albion (British). The 45,000-ton battleships Iowa and Wisconsin and the new 17,000-ton guided-missile cruisers Boston and Canberra, as well as 24 destroyers and over 80 submarines, will take part in this operation to test NATO maritime defenses in the North Atlantic.

Vice-Admiral Pirie's command ship, the USS Northampton, is the only one of its kind in the world. The 17,600-ton streamlined cruiser-type vessel is fitted with 430 different pieces of electronic and communications equipment, including the top-secret "video-print" Outgoing and Incoming messages are flashed "in clear" on a large opaque glass screen before being encoded or decoded and passed on. All the cipher work is done by electronic brains.

towards Morocco to see how enemy submarines could be wiped out in minimum time by maximum application of power.

● OPERATION PIPE-DOWN, directly under Admiral Jerald Wright, USN, Supreme NATO Commander in the Atlantic, is concerned mainly with unification of signals, codes and communications procedures of the American, British, Canadian, French, Italian, Greek, Turkish, Portuguese, German, Belgian, Dutch, Norwegian and Danish Navies.

A message like "Send two hundred ties" is interpreted differently by the American and British Navies, both of which speak the same language. The British will send 200 neckties, the Americans — 200 railroad ties. If a naval supply officer requests benzene, he will get motor fuel from the British, cleaning fluid from the Americans, kerosene from the Portuguese, and who knows what from the Turks.

On the other hand, if an American message asks a British supply base for gas (again motor fuel), the British may supply bottled gas, and if a British message asks for petrol, the Americans will come over with petroleum (paraffin).

Lack of a common language is the Achilles' heel of the 12 NATO navies even now, six years after the United Nations Signals and Communications Procedure was adopted by all countries. The Russians do not have to worry about this.

● OPERATION DRUZHBA, in which the heavy cruiser Zhdanov and Kutuzov, accompanied by four destroyers of the Skory class, take part, consists of "showing the flag" as much as possible in the Mediterranean, and possibly Syria and Egypt as well.

● OPERATION OTRVET is more serious from the operational point of view. YESTERDAY'S PRESS

Maccabiah and Solidarity

Habaker (Fifth Maccabiah) greets the Fifth Maccabiah and writes that after the emergence of the State and in the course of the ingathering of the Exiles we still stand in need of solidarity and brotherhood of Jewish youth throughout the world.

Ommer (Histadrut) finds that the Maccabiah is an inestimably important enterprise. Many positive benefits are bound to accrue from this important get-together.

Herut cannot forget the representatives of Jewish youth in Eastern Europe who are absent through no fault of their own. This get-together of all the Jewish sportsmen of the world is a demonstration for all to see that the new Jew is not bent and weak but has a healthy spirit in a healthy body.

The same paper discusses the resolution on Hungary and is gratified that the Israel delegation voted as it did. There should be no illusions that the USSR will obey the best of the world's nations and pull her troops out of Hungary; but even in this dispute-ridden world, the moral value of the resolution is not to be minimized.

Al Hamishmar (Mapam) also believes that the resolution will have no immediate effect on Moscow's behavior while Haskote (World Mizrahi) observes that the resolution indicates that Soviet tyranny and repression in putting down the Hungarian rising has shaken the whole world. Though Moscow is not expected to do anything about it, it will make a grievous error if it ignores this expression of denunciation, for it will drive the free world to the conclusion that there is nothing to be gained by negotiations since the Kremlin is determined to gain its ends despite everything. Such a belief is bound to push the world into catastrophe.

Davar (Histadrut) seizes on the "traditional" holiday-are rise in prices in the egg, vegetable and fruit market to discuss the general state of affairs and the steps the authorities have taken to combat inflationary tendencies. The paper draws the conclusion that without public intervention and cooperation, the authorities cannot possibly succeed and feels that our public is much too conservative to launch an anti-black market strike. The consumer's undisciplined attitude therefore means that he pays through the nose for products of inferior quality, that increased Government subsidies can only spell higher taxes and that inflation cuts down the pay-earner's purchasing power first and foremost.

● SHELL WITHDRAWAL
Editor, The Jerusalem Post
Sir, — In the Commons debate on the decision of the Shell and British Petroleum companies to close operations in Israel Mr. J. Langford-Holt (Shrewsbury) said that "over recent years the Israel Government may have been guilty of driving a hard bargain with its oil companies" and that "the Government of Israel today would go to great lengths to ensure a reversal of this decision which has now been taken."

Further on Mr. Maundling declared that "it was decided that it was no longer commercially justified to continue marketing operations, and it was decided, as large American companies have decided in the last year or two, to try to dispose of the marketing operations in Israel."

While we all agree that this might be a political decision rather than a commercial one, the public in Israel would also like to hear the other side of the story. Our fuel expert in the Government should explain the nature of the hard bargaining with these foreign oil companies, and in some cases possible today were not foreseen in time, in order to avert the decision, first of Sococo, Vacuum and now of the Shell and the British Petroleum oil companies, to dispose of their marketing organizations in Israel.

Yours, etc.
SAMI ALMOHINO
Haifa, August 16.
The petroleum industry is made up of four main stages: (a) crude production; (b) bulk transportation of oil through pipelines and tankers; (c) refining; (d) marketing.

By far the most profitable branch of the business is crude production, and in some of the other divisions provide facilities for disposing of the crude oil, which is the mainstay of all the oil companies' business. In many countries, e.g. in Switzerland, most of the international oil companies run their marketing activities at a loss. In some other countries marketing operations are conducted with very small profits. For example, page 16 of the 1956 Report of the Shell Company of South Africa states: "Priced by this action to absorb these increased loaded costs of supplies ourselves, it

THE RESISTANCE

By Milovan Djilas

IN the Communist system, life for the individual. The state gives him the opportunity to make a living, but on condition that he submit. The personality is torn between what it desires and what it can actually have. It is free to recognize the interests of the collective and to submit to them, just as in every other system; but also it may rebel against the usurping representatives of the collective. Most of the individuals in the Communist system are not opposed to socialism, but opposed to the way in which it is being achieved. This confirms the fact that the Communists are not developing any sort of true socialism. The individual rebels against those limitations which are in the interest of the oligarchy, not against those which are in the interest of society.

Anyone who does not live under these systems has a hard time grasping how human beings, particularly such proud and brave peoples, could have given up their freedom of thought and work to such an extent. The most accurate, though not the most complete, explanation for this situation is the severity and totality of tyranny. But at the root of this situation, there are deeper reasons.

One reason is historical; the people were forced to undergo the loss of freedom in the irretrievable drive toward economic change. Another reason is of an intellectual and moral nature. Since industrialization had become a matter of life or death, socialism, or Communism, as its ideal expression, became the ideal and hope, almost to the point of religious obsession among some of the population at large as well as the Communists. In the minds of those who did not belong to the old social classes, a deliberate and organized revolt against the party, or against the government, would have been tantamount to treason against the homeland and the highest ideals.

All-Pervading
The most important reason why there was no organized resistance to Communism lies deep in the all-inclusiveness and totalitarianism of the Communist state. It had penetrated into all the pores of society and of the personality—into the vision of the scientists, the aspirations of poets, and the dreams of lovers. To rise against it meant not only to die the death of a desperate individual, but to be branded and excommunicated from society. There is no air or light under the Communist government's iron fist.

Neither of the two main types of opposition groups—that stemming from the older classes and that stemming from original Communism—found any ways and means of combating this encroachment on their liberty. The first group was tugging backward, while the second group carried on a pointless and thoughtless revolutionary activity, and engaged in quibbling about dogma with the regime. Conditions were not yet ripe for the finding of new roads. Meanwhile, the people were instinctively suspicious of the new road and resisted every step and small detail. Today, this resistance is the greatest, the most real threat to Communist regimes. The Communist oligarchs no longer know what the masses think or feel. The regimes feel insecure in a sea of deep and dark discontent. Though history has no record of any other system so successful in checking its opposition as the Communist dictatorship, none ever has provoked such profound and far-reaching discontent. It seems that the more the conscience is crushed and the less the opportunities for establishing an organization exist, the greater the discontent.

Love of Homeland
Communist totalitarianism leads to total discontent, in which all differences of opinion are gradually lost, except the despair and hatred. Spontaneous resistance—the dissatisfaction—of millions with the everyday details of life—is the form of resistance that the Communists have not been able to smother. This was confirmed during the Soviet-German war. When the Germans first attacked the U.S.S.R., there seemed to be little desire for resistance among the Russians. However, Hitler soon revealed that his intentions were the destruction of the Russian state and the changing of the Slavs and other Soviet peoples into impersonal slaves of the Herren-volk. From the depths of the people there emerged a traditional, unquenchable love for the homeland. During the entire war Stalin did not mention either the Soviet government or its socialism to the people; he mentioned only one thing—the homeland. And it was worth dying for, in spite of Stalin's socialism.

● MOUNT ZION
Editor, The Jerusalem Post
Sir, — With regard to the remarks of the Wohlberg family, concerning Mount Zion (your issue of August 30), it is true that the situation as far as the collection of alms is concerned is not satisfactory and we, too, regret this.

Many poor people come here to beg for charity at every Holy Site. We have asked the Jerusalem Municipality several times to post inspectors on Mt. Zion to prevent the soliciting of alms, but this has so far brought no results.

We have also approached Yad Veshem about the collection of funds in the Chamber of Destruction, but this authority has not yet taken any steps either.

We hope that matters will soon be arranged to the satisfaction of the public and as befits this site.
Yours, etc.
